

Statement Environmental Policy:

Sustainability is an integral part of Hoogwegt. As part of the Hoogwegt Group, Hoogwegt International wants to have a positive social and environmental impact on the communities in which we operate, our people and our customers. Our environmental policy focusses on the impact we control and aims to minimize our direct impact on the environment by focussing on office, office location and transport.

Minimizing our office and office location related impact materialized in the location of our new office. The site of the building was chosen based on its location: straight across the central train station of the city of Arnhem. This offers our customers, staff, and visitors the obvious choice to use public transportation instead of transport by car. We actively motivate our employees to use public transport by specific programs. In addition, the in-house parking garage offers many electric charging units, for staff members driving e-cars.

The building itself is built with the latest sustainable building materials, making it circular. With high heat insulation properties and a sustainable state-of-the-art warm air recirculation unit, we aim to minimize our office's energy consumption. Throughout the building we use low energy consuming LED lighting. On the roof of the office building, we generate our own energy through solar panels. On top of that, we source up to 50% green energy and we separate waste into 4 streams.

Minimizing transport related environmental impact is incorporated into our daily business conduct. Here we focus on transport related greenhouse gas emissions per ton of product.

Our current programs to minimize these emissions includes maximizing full truck loads as well as using water and rail alternatives to road transport were possible. We already have established to transfer significant volumes from road to water and rail transport and are evaluating possibilities to further increase these volumes while road transport today already almost solely is based on full truck loads.

By focussing on our direct impact, we are determined to contribute to the environment as part of our corporate social responsibility.
